6th -16th June 2024
Salon Mondial, Basel

www.ramski.net

The 'Wild at Art' art exhibition embraces the vivacity and vibrance of the city, that comes alive within a different context, amidst the hustle and bustle of Art Basel 2024. This second time, we celebrate the many expressions of multi-disciplinary artists from India and Switzerland, with a diverse selection of artworks, in the midst of the Campus of the Arts in Basel at Atelier Mondial.

The exhibition 'Zeitgeist: pre and post Analogue' reflects the techno-spirituality of the 'spirit of the time', before and after analogue, amidst a heavily digi-centric world. With sentiments of new and old, we show harmonies and anomalies between two contrasting multilingual and multi-ethnic nations of Switzerland and India. The alpine nation with its small ecologies; distributed over mountains, lakes, economically and culturally industrious landscapes, remains a land-locked island in the midst of the European Union. Whilst India, the largest tech-savvy democracy in the world, which superseded China with its human capital last year, being a sub-continent of the east, rich in resources, with great mountains, deserts, forests, plateaus, surrounded by seas. India has gone through many transformations at remarkable speeds, since its independence from the Brexiteers (currently governed by a prime minister of the diaspora), offering a plethora of innovations, whilst being intrinsically reverent to ancient lore.

Ancient philosophies (popularly understood through Buddhism or the practice of yoga, which is based on the teachings of the Bhagavad Gita) outline the fundamental principle that 'desire creates sorrow'. With worlds interconnected and ever-growing populations, we are expressing evermore thoughts and creating unbounded desires, which algorithms are processing whilst catalysing weird and wonderful new entropies, exponentially. Daily we feed huge databases with insatiable appetites. They devour monstrous quantities of digital content, through gateways and cookies around the world, each second. Are these quantities and implementations necessary and digestible? Are the benefits of digitalisation setting us free? Are we really helping ourselves in the pursuit of a higher state of liberation? With an energy crisis, when we have to switch off the machine, can we switch ourselves off? Can we disconnect from machines? Where is 'the' switch?

Are we living beyond our existential needs? Has our struggle for existence become more difficult? Have we broken free from natural law (of Karma or Causation) or can it no longer serve us? What are our positions individually and our place with our societies? Have nature walks and conversations with others become crucial to sustain our existence? Where is our mindfulness? Can we go beyond and overcome ourselves? Can we jump over our own shadow? Is there a need for faith, magic and mysticism? What would the great Mahatma say about all this?

Many thanks to Atelier Mondial, Genossenschaft Oslo Ateliers, Alexandra Stäheli, Annie Heine, Mer Ayang for their professional support. Also a big thanks to all the amazing artists, galleries Kalakriti, OJAS and Be Aware and Share for their time, generosity and support.

Abhishek Singh

Painting

Sourced from an innate sense of kalpana (imagination) and arduous sadhana (spiritual discipline) Abhishek's work is a bridge between the drawn temporal and the sacred meta physical. The fantastic drapes a primordial story-teller through the wide range of mediums he explores; oil & acrylic paintings, ink & brush drawings, virtual & animation pieces, graphic novels, comics and fine art books. His stories transport the experiencer to other-worldly realms of the supreme ranging between original futuristic fables and re-imaginings of the mythological stories of India.

Born in Gwalior, India Abhishek's upbringing was showered with India's ancient Myths and folk tales. As a child, he began creating his own on the walls of his family home with simple white chalk taken from grade school. After studying Animation Film Design at India's National Institute of Design, he set out to travel throughout his own country to experience and absorb the deep, rich stories that reticulate India. To prepare for his work he studies the relationship between inner and outer worlds, exploring the Vedic texts, quantum mechanics, botany, neuroscience, his love for Italian Renaissance art, and many 20th Century scientists and mythologists.

His paintings, drawings and digital works have been exhibited a wide array of disparate exhibits and venues including; Heroes and Villains: the Battle for Good in India's Comics at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA); Transcendent Deities of India: The Everyday Occurrence of the Divine at the Asia Society Center in Houston, Texas; Dhyana Roopa at the Academy of Fine Arts and Literature in Delhi, India sponsored by the Nirula Family Art Trust, and at the visionary Fractal Gallery at Burning Man sponsored by the Black Rock Arts Foundation.

Ana Leonor Pita

Sculpture/ Installation

I draw energy from the strength of the forest and its mystique. I feel the sensation of something there, but nothing tangible. I create something that triggers the same feelings as taking a walk in the forest. A guiding path of paper and foliage made of natural materials that dance in the wind.

From the resources and trips through nature, I generate new materials. In my experimentation I combine paint with ash, dirt and sand, creating an intimate connection between art and nature.

„Look, and it can't be seen. Listen, and it can't be heard. Reach, and it can't be grasped.

Seamless, unnamable,
it returns to the realm of nothing. Form that includes all forms, image without an image, subtle, beyond all conception.

Ana Leonor Pita

Sculpture/ Installation

Artwork Number: 21

Title: Memories

Material: Memories II, 2022 Paper on cardboard

Description: Memories have passed and withered, like dead leaves. Some disappear with time, others remain, decay or change. Their colours are dull, sometimes gloomy, sometimes cheerful. They overlap, flow into each other displace each other.

Artwork Number: 108

Title: Thoughts

Material: Installation with 1300 handpainted ribbons

Description: With this installation Ana Leonor Pita wants to bring the world of thoughts to the audience. Our heads are filled with everyday thoughts that occupy our time. Everyday thoughts pass through the sometimes clear, sometimes confused mind. All individuals have thoughts that they understand immediately and others that are difficult to grasp. Ana Leonor Pita has sought to structure these thoughts, which is difficult to master because our mind is not always able to understand what one thinks. „I have depicted the thoughts in the form of hanging textile strips“.

On a white background (mente en blanco), the artist has drawn in black different information inspired by ancient symbols. They are read from top to bottom, as if falling to the ground. The symbols translate feelings, actions, needs, desires, wishes, fears, nature, images and concepts. However, the specific interpretation is left to the audience. Their meanings in themselves have no value, but they repeat themselves constantly, as do thoughts in everyday life.

As if they were machines, our thoughts repeat themselves automatically. Like routines that even cause us to forget what we are thinking about.

Thoughts engulf people more and more thus the stripes become denser and denser. In the middle of the installation, you are walled in by all the thoughts in a tiny space and can no longer see out on any side, which gives the feeling of being trapped in your thoughts.

Anjaneyulu G.

Painting

Anjaneyulu G (b.1976) is from Garidepally, Suryapet district, Telangana. He obtained his bachelors in Fine Arts from JNTU, Collage of Fine Arts (2000), Hyderabad. He currently lives in Hyderabad, Telangana.

Anjaneyulu's artistic vision primarily focuses on household culinary vessels, particularly those that are used in villages to carry and fetch water and for other primary purposes. There was a time when vessels were mostly imitations of clay pots. Slowly, the pot shape has completely gone out of use. In the village where he grew up, pots, the village well, and the common taps were some of those things that seemed to him to be in the nature of the eternal. But as we all learn, nothing is eternal. He felt that the water pots used by women were designed to nestle against their waists. Maybe that was just him, because many women would also carry them on their heads. As the world moved ahead from draw wells to hand pumps and hand pumps to water tanks, so have vessels moved from the pot shapes to cylinders. So now they lie unloved and uncared for, waiting for their cremation. Or some unlucky ones find themselves in the mesmerizing markets of the Jummarath bazaar in Hyderabad.

Anjani Reddy

Painting

"The subject matter of my paintings is either nostalgic or from imagination based on dreams, fantasies beautiful experiences of growing up and surroundings etc.

I enjoy creating beautiful compositions that transport the viewer into my world, with graceful female figures set amongst their natural environment, colorfully dressed in traditional attire, leisurely engaged in day to day activities, or participating in numerous rituals and festive celebrations that take place round the year.

Apart from these, most of the times there is a lone female figure in solitude, having a dialogue with nature, while a bird perched on a nearby branch watches silently.

The thought of applying myself to serious aspect of human existence occurred to me, but my attempts to portray them turned futile. Having realized my ability to find inspiration from harder side of life, I reverted to my forte of painting 'The Woman' resplendent in all the glory as a tribute to the female form. markets of the Jummarath bazaar in Hyderabad."

Prof. Anjani Reddy finds joy in life's simple pleasures, as evidenced by her vibrant canvases capturing the essence of celebration. As the eldest daughter-in-law in a large family, she orchestrates numerous weddings and family gatherings, offering a glimpse into the traditional festivities of rural Reddy households.

Her paintings serve as heartfelt expressions, depicting her deep connection to nature, the bonds of friendship and family, and the sheer joy of human connection. Through intricate floral representations and scenes of familiar traditions like Bathukamma preparations and festive visits, Anjani's art evokes a sense of nostalgia and warmth.

Inspired by childhood memories spent amidst the architectural marvels of her village, Anjani channels her creativity into capturing moments of joy and beauty. She sees her art not just as a means of self-expression, but also as a source of solace and happiness for others in a world often overshadowed by turmoil.

With each stroke of her brush, Anjani hopes to transport viewers back to the simplicity and innocence of their childhoods, offering a moment of respite from life's challenges. In a world fraught with chaos, her paintings stand as beacons of joy, inviting all who behold them to pause, smile, and rediscover the beauty in everyday life.

Daniel Petko

Painting/ Collage

Geboren: 1971 in Solothurn, Schweiz

Ausbildung: F+F Kunstschule Zürich, Schule für Gestaltung Bern

Daniel Petković, geboren 1971 in Solothurn als Sohn kroatischer Wirtschaftsmigranten, fand seine künstlerische Befreiung durch das ikonische Magazin-Cover von 1984 für den Film "Wild Style". Diese Begegnung mit der amerikanischen Graffiti-Kunst eröffnete ihm eine neue Welt kreativer Freiheit.

Aufgewachsen bei seinen Grosseltern nahe Šibenik in Kroatien, entwickelte Petković in der wilden Natur des dalmatinischen Hinterlands eine tiefe Verbundenheit zu seinem kreativen Schaffen. Die Strukturen und Oberflächen von Felsen und Steinformationen beeinflussen bis heute seine impulsive und leidenschaftliche Kunst.

Nach einer Ausbildung zum Schlosser in Muttenz, Schweiz, fand Petković auch in der dortigen Natur und Architektur reichlich Inspiration. Besonders die Linien kahler Winterbäume faszinierten ihn und führten zu seinem Stil, den er als "Formaler Limitismus" bezeichnet. Dieser Stil betont das expressive Spiel mit Farben und Formen, harmonisch verbunden durch begrenzende schwarze Linien.

Petković arbeitet hauptsächlich mit Acrylfarben und verschiedenen Mischtechniken. Um seine künstlerische Identität weiterzuentwickeln, besuchte er ein Semester die F+F Kunstschule in Zürich. Er findet Inspiration im Alltag, in der Mode sowie in Filmen und Magazinen. Musik spielt eine zentrale Rolle in seinem Schaffensprozess und hilft ihm, tief in seine Werke einzutauchen.

Früher war Petković Mitglied der Basler Musikband SONOLAR, wo er für die visuellen Effekte auf der Bühne verantwortlich war. 2006 vertiefte er seine Fähigkeiten im Filmemachen an der Schule für Gestaltung in Bern.

Fasziniert von der äusseren Schönheit des menschlichen Gesichts, nutzt Petković Farben und Formen, um persönliche Geschichten zu erzählen. Seine Werke laden den Betrachter ein, in eine kunstvolle Welt einzutauchen und sie zu erforschen.

Denise Lach

Calligraphy

Denise Lach has been passionately involved in calligraphy and conceptual writing for the past thirty years. She teaches lettering design and screen printing at the Basel School of Design and regularly leads calligraphy courses and workshops in France and abroad, where she also exhibits her work.

As her technique evolved, she increasingly focused her research on the diversity of play opportunities linked with textural and experimental writing, which she always set great store by.

She does not illustrate texts, but searches them for the emotion, the colour, the word that she'll be able to translate into her graphic language. Working on a variety of media enables her to experiment with several techniques and share her skills with other artists.

I have left the paths of neat and easily readable calligraphy. But I have retained its discipline and precision.

I have had many opportunities for exchange in various places, and have always found the emulation and competitiveness in artistic training centres most stimulating.

I am fascinated with the weaving of words and the resulting structures. The never-ending play of writing on a variety of media broadens the graphic vocabulary and stimulates self-expression and creativity.

I receive and answer invitations from calligraphic associations, schools or institutions focusing on Fine Arts, Graphic Arts or Textile Design.

For further information please contact these institutions.

Dirk Koy

Digital Animation

Dirk Koy, born in 1977, is a Basel-based artist active in various fields of moving image creation.

After studying visual communication at the Academy of Art and Design in Basel, which he completed in 2002, Dirk Koy worked at KMS-Team Munich in the field of graphic design and animation, and then cofounded the visual communication studio Equipo in 2007. In 2016 he founded the experimental film studio Dirk Koy Bild und Bewegung.

His works lie at the junction between a graphic, photographic and video approach anchored in the tangible and a digital work. They propose to experience the meeting of the real world with a virtual universe, of the analogical with the digital, while revealing the pictorial quality of digital contexts. The plurality of digital technologies employed by Koy in the realisation of his works, such as 2d and 3d animation, drones, photogrammetry, 3d scanning, augmented reality and virtual reality, as well as the manipulation of the various parameters of operating software whose limits he tests, attest to his interest in experimentation. In his works representing distortions of the real world through these different digital processes, he thus gives a singular view of everyday life.

Harshvardhan Kadam

Digital Animation

In a realm of immersive exploration, unrestrained and expansive as the very essence of energy, I've woven my creative journey through the intricate threads of traditional and digital art forms. This odyssey has given birth to a plethora of artworks that now stand as iconic beacons, carving out fictional and mythological realms, earning accolades in esteemed publications, and etching indelible mythic imprints in the public consciousness.

As a painter, my strokes breathe life into inert canvases and spaces, bestowing upon them a pulsating vitality. Art, to me, is the rhythmic cadence of possibilities brought to life. Stepping into the role of a creative director, I conjure characters and worlds that transcend the bounds of reality, forging narratives within audio-visual realms, immersive installations, cinematic tapestries, and the boundless canvas of games. Nestled within the heart of Pondicherry, India, my practice resonates with the echoes of Kalarippayattu, the ancient martial art from India, the serenity of Yoga, and the quest for spiritual resonance.

The inception of Inkbrushnme can be traced back to 2005, a humble tale born of a graduation project. Nurtured by a rich tapestry of diverse artistic, spiritual, and cultural influences, Inkbrushnme has organically burgeoned into a multidisciplinary haven. My academic journey spans the corridors of visual art at AKMV, Pune, and the corridors of communication design at IDC, IIT Bombay. My existence, both in work and life, mirrors the convergence of two distinct yet harmonious realms - the symphony of art and design, the interplay of emotion and expression, a dance echoing the eternal dynamics of yin and yang, much akin to the entwined energies of Shiva and Shakti.

Within the nucleus of my being resides an unquenchable desire to metamorphosise the self and to propagate art's transformative essence far and wide.

Title: Ein Land Weiss Waschen

Description: The artist delves into the manifestations of violence within the psychological impact upon the interiority of continuously vulnerable and marginalised community groups under neocolonialism.

In "Eine Land weisse waschen" translated to "To Wash a Country White" the piece investigates the legacy of racial capitalism when Switzerland claims colonial exceptionalism. The chocolate industry in Switzerland began to thrive at the turn of the 19th century. The same time that the colonial empires began to outlaw importation of African enslaved people while simultaneously legalising forced sharecropping (neo-slavery). To Wash A Country White speaks to the continued extractions from African communities such as that of Ivory Coast, Ghana, and Congo. Switzerland's billion dollar chocolate industry requires the main ingredients of its product cocoa beans and sugar to be imported. This demand is tied to high poverty rates, deforestation, monopoly on food crops at the service of industry, child/people enslavement among other forms of oppression at the expense of African well being.

The blue parrot with the black beret nods to a childhood story book character Globi. The parrot was created by the company Globus to normalize and introduce "native products" being acceptable to touch since they underwent whitewashing through production and treatment. More specifically, it was the creation of a White Negro Caricature or the Mohren (called Blackamoor in English) that accompanied the cartoon parrot which is the most insidious in the aftermath of harmfully accumulating stereotypes tied to Blackness. The crows reference an advertisement against immigration by the conservative Swiss party, which uses crows to attack the Swiss flag in 2010 as a symbol for immigrants "stealing" jobs. Last but not least, there is also a cage to reference the historical implications of humans zoos, such that the racial captivity of Amanoua Kpapo an African Albino woman from Accra who was advertised as 'A Black Negro Woman'.

Jana Vanecek

Digital Art

Jana Vanecek was born in former Czechoslovak Socialist Republic and is based in Zurich (Switzerland). They hold degrees in fine arts, critical theory and trans-disciplinarity in the arts. Their trans-disciplinary artistic research is situated at the intersection of conceptual art, auto-theory and speculative fiction, with an emphasis on planetary health, the economisation of healthcare, health inequality, and critical neuro-diversity. Beyond these areas, Vanecek delves into the realms of non-human agency, post-humanism, and critically engages with the implications of generative A.I., showcasing a broad yet focused spectrum of inquiry.

Vanecek has been awarded multiple residencies across Switzerland, Czechia, Italy, and Hong Kong and is currently in Shanghai, thanks to the generous funding from Pro Helvetia. They have twice won the Zurich Art Grant and were nominated for the Swiss Art Award in 2021. Vanecek's contributions span books, journals, conferences, and artist talks. Their academic achievements include receiving an Excellence Scholarship for Outstanding Academic Records from the Zurich University of Arts.

Their contributions include the pioneering monograph, 'ID9606/2a-c: Dispositive eines Virus,' published by transversal texts, and its corresponding artwork, 'ID9606/2a-c [Welcome to the Biocentury],' which was acquired by the Art Collection of the City of Zurich. These works underscore their commitment to addressing pressing global issues through artistic research. Vanecek's art has been showcased in institutions across Switzerland and internationally.

As the co-founder of the Arab Film Festival Zurich and the HOSPIZ DER FAULHEIT artist group, Vanecek fosters collaborative spaces for creative expression and dialogue. Their participation in the Madame Psychosis online publishing collective and Club La Fafa, alongside their partnership with Chantal Romani in the KUNST BRAUCHT KOHLE duo, illustrates a socially engaged approach to contemporary art practice.

Digital Art

Artwork Number: 104

Title: TWILIGHT OF THE IDOLS

Description: draws inspiration from Alexander Bogdanov's 1908 science fiction novel "RED STAR," presenting a speculative narrative that reverses neoliberal fantasies of Mars colonisation. At the heart of this project is a fictional museum dedicated to 4,600 cyborg cockroaches. The underlying eco-feminist speculative narrative envisions a future scenario in which these 4,600 cyborg cockroaches save the planet from the effects of global warming and teach humans to establish a reciprocal relationship with the cosmos. The museum stands as a monument to their contributions, emphasising the importance of diversity, non-hierarchical organisation, shared knowledge production, and divergent thinking.

The artist created each of these cockroaches using an AI text-to-image generator with the same prompt, exploring the concept of the simulacrum, as discussed by Gilles Deleuze in his book 'The Logic of Sense,' particularly in the chapter titled 'Plato and the Simulacrum'. This concept challenges the notion of original and copy, asserting that the simulacrum holds a positive power that negates both, which is embodied in the unique appearance of each cockroach.

Cockroaches, with their ancient lineage and remarkable adaptability through mass extinctions (survived the dinosaurs), symbolise resilience and non-hierarchical social structures, reflecting the interconnected, simulacrum world "TWILIGHT OF THE IDOLS" portrays. Their close relationship with human environments and their overlooked role in ecosystems are highlighted, inviting viewers to reconsider their perceptions of these creatures.

The project aligns with ecofeminist principles of mutual respect and interconnectedness among all living beings and the land, emphasising the need for reciprocity to maintain health and well-being in both human and non-human communities. The choice of cockroaches as the main protagonists echoes Donna Haraway's concept of "making kin" and Karen Barad's „intra-action“. It also seizes Isabelle Stengers' call for an "ecology of practices", urging a reevaluation of our relationship with nature and advocating for a future of harmony and balance. "TWILIGHT OF THE IDOLS" serves as a poignant reminder of our shared destiny with the non-human world and the essential role each species plays in planetary health.

Jana Vanecek's choice of cockroaches as protagonists alludes to literary historical references such as Kafka, Marquis or McEwan. In this work, they are brought to the forefront to speak not only for themselves, but also for those marginalised and overlooked by society. At the same time they remind us of our shared destiny with the natural world, and the crucial role each species plays in the health of our planet.

Weaving together art, philosophy, AI, and speculative fiction, the artwork challenges viewers to reconsider their notions of reality, imitation, representation, and coexistence. It also reflects Deleuze's notion of subverting the established world of representation in Plato's model of original and copy – especially in the context of AI-generated imagery – echoing Nietzsche's proclamation of the „twilight of the idols.“

Juliette Lepage Boisdrón

Painting

Juliette Lepage Boisdrón is a contemporary figurative artist. She was born in Paris in 1971 and has been creating a unique and poetic universe for over 30 years, integrating painting, drawing and art jewellery. As a child, Juliette grew up in culturally diverse places such as North China, U.S.S.R, the Arab Emirates and sub-Saharan Africa. This extremely cosmopolitan childhood has undoubtedly had a creative influence on the artist's work.

Juliette holds a master's degree in Art History from the Sorbonne University. After her studies in Paris, Juliette has continued to travel extensively and has lived in many countries, moving every 2 to 5 years. Her professional career is therefore quite eclectic, however, one constant remains in her life : she has always been creating poetic paintings and contemporary Jewellery, transcribing what she has learnt from different people and different cultures. In the 90's, Juliette lived several years in Singapore where she worked as an art gallery director, then she moved to India and worked as an artistic agent. Back in Paris, Juliette worked for the website of the Fondation Cartier and between 2010 and 2014, she lived in Portugal, where she learned traditional jewellery-making techniques with Lisbon artist Catarina Silva.

Returning to Singapore in 2017, she studied ancient and contemporary Chinese painting techniques with artist LIM CHOON JIN at the Lasalle School of the Arts, as well as the complex, ancestral techniques of rice paper marouflage. The artist now lives between Basel, Paris and Lisbon. She is a member of DOCK Basel, VISARTE ( Newcomer), SGBK section Basel, le Cercle de l' Art and Klimt02. She has exhibited extensively in America, Europe and Asia. She is currently represented by galleries in Basel and in the USA. Her work can be found in numerous private collections worldwide.

ARTIST'S APPROACH

Juliette Lepage Boisdrón's aesthetic universe, both fascinating and poetic, is inhabited by expressive, majestic and mystical women, caring insects, large observing eyes, exuberant plants and plenty of animals. The scenes that unfold, at first sight, seem simple, playful, then become tinged with more complex allusions, feminist or ecological themes.

Her work explores in a sometimes provocative way the notions of femininity, courage, vulnerability and power. The artist questions the functioning of society, its codes and the role that women play in it. She evokes maternity, the family and trans-generational relationships. She also addresses themes such as climate change and the problem of future generations who will have to grow up in this highly fragile and complex environment.

Free from any academic constraint or pragmatic reasoning, her artistic approach is based on her spontaneity and the emotional charge that presides over the act of creation. Everything is charged with an enchanting essence that seems to inhabit her characters, as if irradiated with an incandescent energy. Her complex work, free of all concessions, confronts us with the emotions of our human condition, our relationship with others and with the universe that surrounds us. Juliette paints mainly with Indian ink on Xuan Paper.

"It isn't reality as such which interests Jung-Yeun Jang, but her image; that means her fictive re-presentation. We know that the particular details shown in these works are of less importance than the photographic sources. This is not done innocently. Description: The concept of the work relates to transitions and processes of changing time. It reflects time and picks up on the tensions of change in a digital versus analog context. The analog is questioned and reflects the being of a natural process.

The material 'linseed oil', known since the Egyptians, was used for mummification and is a well-known binding agent in the history of painting. At the beginning of the exhibition, the container is prepared performatively with Chinese ink and linseed oil. Over the course of the week, the processes of the linseed oil set in. The change cannot be stopped. The moment, the now of crystallization, is always visible.

Two monitors capture a special state of change and create a virtual image.

Fiction and reality merge to create an expanded view of time. Do we need the analog? Change can be created and expanded digitally. New possibilities of interpretation arise.
